VOL. 7.

RENO, WASHOE COUNTY, NEVADA, WEDNESDAY MORNING, MAY 20, 1877.

NO. 51.

CARSON VS. RENO.

The Carson Appeal of Sunday morning contains what follows:

C. C. Powning, Esq., editor and proprietor of the DAILY STATE JOURNAL, a thorough Reno man in all respects, peert and unhesitating, built for carrying considerable sail and making speedy goings and comings in the smaller currents of life (and not unlikely in the larger ones, as well), he came in on a flying visit to the Morning Appeal office yesterday, flushed with health and quite alive, to be sure, with the eardrums of him, breaking his way through all dullness, and scorning all laggards, as it were, and citing a considerable swath of his own and not hesitating to shake up as lazy seniors and let us know that there is some life stirring yet in this universal world of flummery and yams;—and he was well, which was needless, the same evident, and that his family was in fine health, which is gratifying—setting us molly old ones a lesson in bragging, which some of us do not do because we lack the exuberance of self-trustful courage. And so we are led on to what the Enterprise of yesterday has to say upon the subject of Reno's locality and prosperousness. Says that paper:

A gentleman residing in this city who recently visited Reno speaks in glowing terms of the future prospects of that town. He is of the opinion that it is destined to become one of the most prosperous places in the State. Located on the main artery of the greatest railway system in the United States and surrounded by a rich agricultural district, through which courses the beautiful Truckee, with its banks lined with elegant residences, it is indeed a town of magnificent possibilities. Its people are infused with a spirit of enterprise scarcely surpassed by the dwellers on the Comstock. As showing the extent of the appreciation of agricultural lands within the district named, within the past year, we may mention that a few days since a lady owning a farm of eight acres in the vicinity of the race track, refused an offer of $8,000 in gold coin for the same. We are pleased to note the prosperity of our sister town of the plain, and hope it may continue to extend its borders until it attains the proportions of a fair city, which it is destined to become at no distant day.

Now we (of the editorial immortality) are quite free to own that we do not like Reno. There is an old smart, railroddish, hazy century air about the place, and a paucity of comforts which fail to commend it to any tastes of our own. We are almost tempted to confess that we have the kind of dislike for it that we have for an upstart, but there is an energy and public spirit about its people sadly wanting in Carson. Our little city is the older Comstock suburb of the two; and somehow there has always been a feeling of rivalry between the places—more as if Reno was an impudent new comer; there as if Carson were a stung and prudish old man. If the truth is to be stated, Reno is impudent; but also its citizens are entering into an alliance to the things and interests which invite prosperity. Carson has herself to blame for a good deal of the denunciations of things here. Possibly we have had too much help in the way of State benefits; and capital towns are notoriously dependent. What we need is the spirit of enterprise. Our natural advantages are very superior. The place is pleasantly situated, there is more that is home-like here than in any other town of this State, and people of the better class would prefer living here. Here, also, of all places was the natural point for holding an Annual State Fair. A lazy man cannot accomplish what an alert, stirring one can bring about. The price we pay for our superior style and tone is dullness and inertia. We are too dignified to do the necessary rustling; and we are too cautious to make the needed investments. So Reno boasts of sharp prosperity, and our go-ahead young friend Powning does the same whistling for it. Cannot we get our heads together and do something which shall make our Park a point of attraction for the owners of fat swine and fast going horses.

A JUDGE of the Vermont Supreme Court, whose name is not given, applied to President Waite of the Vermont Valley Railroad for a free pass. Mr. Waite refused, and said that he had no need or desire to buy up the Supreme Court; and he added that nearly every prominent politician, editor, clergyman, Judge and State official seemed to be bedaddled.

We infer from the above that Waite is a pretty good man.

The Black Hills Daily Times published at Deadwood, says California men have begun the undertaking of fluming the Whitewood and Deadwood canyons. Starting at the rapid; eight miles below Deadwood City, it will be built to the bed rock and follow the same the full length of the canyon. The cost of the enterprise is estimated at $300,000.

VIVIPAROUS FISH.—The salt water perch of this coast are viviparous, which gives occasion for the following item in the Valjejo Chronicle:

From a perch caught in the bay this morning the possessor extracted sixty-eight infant perches, not as much as two inches long. Being somewhat of a mathematician he took the market price of perches as the basis and figured that if the mother perch hadn't been caught, and if her children had all been successfully born and lived, at the end of the year they would have been worth $14.90 to the consumer.

NEWS OF THE MORNING.

The announcement of the loss of the steamer City of San Francisco, off the coast of Mexico, is announced. No particulars are given.

The United States authorities say that the Mexican outrages must be stopped, and propose to adopt vigorous measures to stop them if required.

Three men were burned to death in New York yesterday by the explosion of a tank of oil.

The President said yesterday he favored the reorganization of silver. It is thought Secretary Sherman will favor making silver a legal tender for $50.

Pinney is getting the worst of his bargain. He is made to answer for embezzlement of $58,585.50 from the Ida Elmore mine in 1875. He is in jail because he can't raise $30,000 bail.

The steamer City of Brussels has arrived safe in Liverpool—being 32 days on the route.

Three negroes were lynched on Friday for the murder of Mrs. C. C. Chambliss, of Stewart county, Georgia. They attempted to rob the house and were resisted by Mrs. Chambliss, when she was shot dead. The murderers were hanged with a trace chain, negroes participating in the lynching.

The fast train on the Pennsylvania route, the presence of which was likely to cause a railroad war with the Central, Erie, and others, was taken off last night. Peace will now be likely to follow.

HARVARD COLLEGE is unfortunate this year. The class day exercises are to be omitted from the annual ceremonies because of the jealousy of the secret societies of the students and their inability to agree upon a set of officers. The athletic sports will also be dispensed with, and the belles of Cambridge are naturally in a state of deep despondency. The outside public, looking upon the discordant secret associations cause, will not have a high opinion of their usefulness and will be glad to see a serious movement for their total abolition.

SWITZERLAND is a republic of hotel-keepers, and now its business is seriously threatened by the war. Enormous capital has been invested of late years in putting up new hotels, and the coming season was counted upon as a profitable one. The war at one stroke cuts off all the Russians, a vast band of moneyed tourists who delighted in those mountains, and many of other nationalities, upon whom hostilities will indirectly act.

PITY the sorrows of a San Francisco voter on next election day. He will have to make choice from two Democratic, two People's, one and a half Republican and seven other reform (?) tickets. Solomon said, "In a multitude of counselors there is wisdom;" but in a multitude of tickets there is something better—unlimited "rush" for the honest and conscientious voter.

It is said General Butler intends to emigrate to Colorado, and will endeavor to secure the Senatorship from the Centennial State. Butler is on the wrong track. He should get some money and try Nevada. We think we would like an Eastern man for a change, and San Francisco is short of timber.

It is said Senator Sargent will seek to obtain indictments for libel against the San Francisco Chronicle in every county in California where action on the part of the grand jury can be obtained in time to make it available in exposing the conspiracy against him.

THERE are two Democratic County Committees in San Francisco—a long-tail and a short-tail one; and the long and the short of the matter is a lively little Skibbreen fight may be expected.

In October, 1868, the first safety-cage with concentric catches was made for the Comstock mines.

The people of Ireland have made up a purse of over $100,000 for the Pope. The subscriptions were mostly small.

STATESMANSHIP VS. PARTISANSHIP.

There is a broad distinction between statesmanship, by which a government should be administered, and partisanship, by which a party is led on to victory and power. Partisanship is a warfare, an intellectual, tactical struggle to win popular favor to one side, and prejudice the popular mind against the other. True, there may be, and often are, principles at the bottom of partisanship, but they are always such that the tactical-minded politician believes will be popular, rather than such as statesmanlike wisdom would say were best for the people. Principles seldom get into a party platform because they are wise, but warts are thought to be against public sentiment at the time, unless the political authors believe that discussion will bring the public judgment up to their approval. Party platforms, in other words, are made for party success in the campaign, and the best outside show is given them. The question of what is really best for the people is not much considered in party principles, but rather what will prove popular with the people and secure their votes.

Partisanship, being a warfare for power, similar acts of generalship and strategy are employed that a skilful commander would use to give him access to the field. But statesmanship simply considers what is best for the people, all things considered. We have a distinguishing illustration of this difference now presented, in Mr. Blaine and President Hayes. The partisan looks for a permanent triumph over his adversary; the statesman knows no distinction between parties, and considers what is best for majorities, and minorities as well.

Blaine would make the Confederates bite the dust of humiliation, and keep them in political subordination through all time for the offences of the past, and in fear of future abuse of power, should they obtain it; while Hayes considers what is best for both parties in the South—whether a perpetuation of the recent struggle would be best, or whether this is not a good time to return to the old practice of leaving each and every State to make its own laws and choose its own administrators under the solemn promises that have now been secured, that fair play and the same rights and privileges should be extended to the freedmen that are enjoyed by their white fellow citizens.

Mr. Blaine is right as a Partisan, for on the issue he still presses many victories to his party have been won. But President Hayes is right as a Statesman, for he seeks social and industrial harmony; from his standpoint he sees no majority and no minority, but only people in them all—people whose interest in social order and prosperous industry are the same, and to secure which a cessation of political strife at the South is very essential. That affairs there must at some time be left to their normal condition is obvious.

President Hayes believes that that time has come now, and though he recognizes the possibility of some antagonisms that may jar or break up the harmony of the new regime, he does not believe they will be so damaging to the great interests of all, as a longer continuance of the late great strife. In the re-adjustment of social order, economical and stable State governments, there may be some social turmoil and disturbing quarrels, the same as there are eddies and counter currents in the flow of the broadest rivers. He believes as thousands of others begin to, that it is best to credit the whites of the South with sincerity in their pledges, and again try the experiment of State self government, uninfluenced by Federal authority, further than the constitutional requirement to preserve the peace, when State authority proves inadequate.

The industrial redemption of the South, which is the great thing, rests with the people of the South. And if there is any ability in the whites or the blacks to work out their own prosperity, it is obviously best to give them an opportunity by withdrawing every outward or repressive influence that may serve to keep them in a state of social and political ferment.

President Hayes believes that the roiled waters of that part of the Union will settle clear if we cease to stir up the muddy bottom by force currents of political contention.

We have had a long period of political warfare in the Republic, and the great question of the age has been fought out, and it is time that statesmanship took the place of partisanship to demonstrate what may result from it.

The current of freedom cannot be turned backward now, as well fear the turning of the Missouri river over the Rocky Mountains to enter into the Pacific Ocean.

Let us then try statesmanship for a period. If it fails of the promised good, it will not take long to find the old political trail again, and re-pack our mules for a farther journey over the arid and windy desert of political contention.

STATE NEWS.

Theodore Tilton will shortly visit Virginia City, to elucidate "The Problem of Life."

Mr. Carlella, an Italian rancher residing three miles northeast of Sutro, has just finished making an irrigating ditch which is five miles long and has cost $1,200. The ditch begins at the Rock Point mill, near Dayton.

There is some talk that the banking house of D. B. Immel & Co. will resume business in a few days with an infusion of fresh capital. The accounts at Eureka are about a stand-off—that is, there is as much due the bank as it owes, and, if the liabilities in San Francisco are not too great, there would seem to be some hope of an early resumption of business.

There were 30 members of the Convention which framed the Constitution of this State—including the President, the late J. Neely Johnson. Of these thirty, says the Carson Appeal, we can enumerate six who have died. These are J. Neely Johnson, Jas. A. Bunks, C. M. Brown, Geo. A. Hudson, C. E. DeLong and Lloyd Frizell. There are others of whom we are uncertain whether they are alive or dead. If none besides those we have enumerated have gone, there are no less than 24 of the 30 men who were assembled here about 13 years ago, still in the land of the living—a very large proportion, as the life lists are counted.

The Manhattan Mining Company of Austin will close down about the 1st of June for the purpose of repairing, which will take about a month.

Rheumatism is one of the principal ailments of Eureka, according to the Republican, and the disease generally attacks its victims in a serious way. Several parties were prostrated with it during the past few days.

Are now opening a new and complete stock of above mentioned articles which we purchased at the very lowest rates and are determined to give our patrons the benefit thereof. Being maintained here so long, it is almost useless to mention that what we say we mean to do—we don't pull and blow; never compromised with our creditors, and still live and let live.
C<sup>o</sup> Call and examine our stock and prices before purchasing otherwise.
